“ Sincere condolences to the family of John Moore. My first acquaintance with John was when he was with The Black Knights, a group of African American businessmen who were the owners of a "GQ" type men's clothing store. The Black Knights always supported the scholarship fundraiser of the Business Ladies In Session (BLIS) of which I was a member. He was a strong advocate and supporter of business people and philanthropy. Your good deeds will follow you!

“ Deepest sympathy on the recent passing of John. I knew him to be a fine gentleman working with him at the Joan of Arc food bank. I had no idea of his past accomplishments as he was a quiet, humble man. I shall miss him very much.

“ when my daughters didn't return to their seats after the Sign of Peace time at Mass at St. Martin de Porres, I knew I could find them sitting on John's knee. He was the kindest person I've been blessed to know. God bless his family, now that Alvetta & John have been reunited in heaven. Peggy, Christina and Tia Lowery
